

MOLA

I saw my first mola mola (ocean sunfish) when I was 14 years old. It was close to shore -- about fifteen foot from the sand - in Yucatan Mexico. My brother and I were snorkeling right off the beach, I turned and the “mola” was literally in my face., and what a face indeed. It was a round, bulbous form with a huge eye and vaguely a tail -- as alien a creature that you will ever see. It was definitely very young, because it was, at most, three-foot in length.

These images are a confluence of forms: mola, bleached mussels, polar bear, and mer-creature between the pelagic and heliosphere.

Individual titles:

Mola [Green Trace]

Mola [Shtell]

Mola [Group]

Mola [Orange Trace]

Mola [Tread]

MOLA